SIERRA HYBRID

WHENEVER YOU CAN, USE LESS.

THE 2009 SIERRA HYBRID.

With swimsuits and gasoline, less is definitely more. That's why we gave the Sierra Hybrid America's first two-mode hybrid engine in a full-size truck.* Not only do you get 40% better city mileage over the non-hybrid engine, but it's in a vehicle you can actually use. It's a real hybrid for real life. The Sierra Hybrid from GMC. Doing more with less happens when you never say never.

*Excludes other GM vehicles. EPA-est. mpg (2WD) 21 city Sierra Hybrid; 14 city non-hybrid. ©2009 GM Corp. All rights reserved. GMC® GMC logo® Sierra® GM®

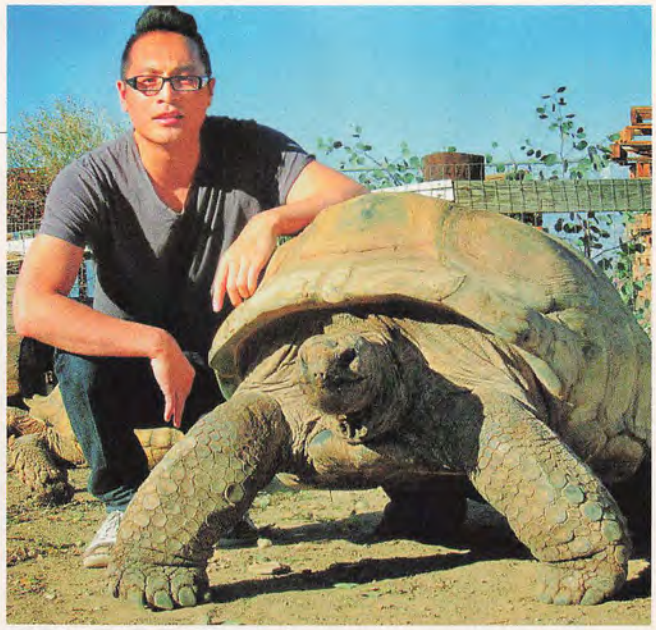
THE PEOPLE WHO MADE THIS ISSUE HAPPEN



PHOTOGRAPHER
Yu Tsai

IN 1996, Yu Tsai, who shot Cappadocia for this issue (page 92), traveled to Kenya with a student research team from Cal Poly–Pomona. A zoology and biology major, Yu did microhabitat research for eight weeks, which left him drained physically and emotionally. ("Eight hours motionless on top of a rock trying to escape an angry warthog will do that.") On returning to the U.S., he enrolled at the Arts Center College of Design in Pasadena; thus began a career that has earned him acclaim in the graphic arts (Yu Tsai did the title sequence for The Sopranos) and photography (his portrait subjects include Sienna Miller and Anne Hathaway). But he has not abandoned the wild; he keeps more than 1,000 tortoises on his family's farm in Chino, Calif., including two aldabras (right) weighing more than 400 pounds each.

ASSISTANT EDITOR
Darcie Baum

LAST AUGUST, two weeks before a shoot in a Middle Eastern country, the nation's tourism board canceled the deal due to a tense political climate. Baum, 24, quickly moved the entire operation to the Canary Islands (page 124). "People barely noticed the switch," says creative director Steven Hoffman. "Darcie's a closer: the Mariano Rivera of Swimsuit editors."

VIDEOGRAPHERS
Robb Riley / Julie Deichman

AS CAMERAMAN for Chaos Films, Riley has been on every Swimsuit shoot for the last seven years, filming the footage used for the more than four hours of video that will air on SI.com. His producer, Deichman, doubles as his wife. "But everything runs so smoothly," says senior editor Christian Stone, "everyone forgets they're married."

CREATIVE DIRECTORS
Steven Hoffman / Suzanne Noli

FURTHER EVIDENCE of marital harmony is provided by Hoffman, SI's creative director since 1986, and Noli, his wife, with whom he codesigned this year's issue. They met six years ago at a design contest where they were both judges and, says Hoffman, "apparently judged ourselves right for each other." Hoffman has overseen the massive expansion of the Swimsuit franchise in the last decade. This, however, is the first time he's received editorial assistance from his wife, who has designed magazines and books for Condé Nast, HarperCollins and O and with whom he has just launched a company, Hoffman/Noli Design. "Steve has defined and redefined the Swimsuit Issue for 23 years," says Terry McDonell, editor of the Sports Illustrated Group, "and adding Suzanne to the team has only made it stronger."

Rogue Gallery

SI'S EDITORS TURNED THE SWIMSUIT MODELS LOOSE IN THEIR CITIES AND ASKED THEM TO BRING BACK SNAPSHOTS SHOWING THEIR WILD SIDES. THE RESULTS WERE SMASHING

OLÉ Lucia went down to Wall Street on June 13, 2008, and took the bull by the horns.

THE SWIMSUIT ISSUE asks a lot of its models. Tilt your head a little to the left, hon. Relax those eyes. More cleavage. Perfect, sweetie.

And still, they are unfailingly polite and understanding, meeting every request with the effortless grace and poise on display throughout this issue. But we had one more favor to ask of 15 of the models: Go rogue. Here's a camera, grab a friend and give us a snapshot (or five or 10) of your playful, even mischievous side. Lucia Dvorska (above) obliged by mounting the Wall Street bull in the middle of a June day. Damaris Lewis dropped in . . . well, let Damaris explain her candid on the following page.

"O.K., I was with my agent, and we went to a Duane Reade, and the manager was, like, 'No shirt? No shoes? Blah, blah, blah.' So where else can we go? We're on Park Avenue, and we both had our MetroCards, so we say, 'Why not the subway?' It's 11 o'clock in the morning, there aren't many people there, and we went all the way to the end of the platform. It's just Calvin, myself and one other guy, who's standing there, very confused.

"The confusion's just starting. In between trains and waiting for the people to clear out, I take off my dress and we just start taking pictures. Took one sitting down, took one where I'm leaning over the platform to see if a train is coming. Took only a minute. Slipped my dress back on, and we were out of there. I've never had a bathing suit on in the subway, and it was kind of a challenge to see how scared I would be or how much fun I would have. I ended up having so much fun.

"And that guy at the end of the platform? He forgot to get on the next train."

For the entire portfolio of models' snapshots, go to si.com/candids.

SNOW WHITE Clockwise from above: Jessica White had her pose down cold in a backyard outside Buffalo; Damaris, having been booted from a Manhattan drug store, went underground and caught the subway home to Brooklyn; after a long day of shooting, Irina Shayk literally stopped traffic before hitching a ride back to her Las Vegas hotel; Esti Ginzburg did a little laundry, beach-style, in her apartment building in New York City's East Village.

Vegas, Baby, Vegas!

YOU TOO CAN GO TO THE SWIMSUIT PARTY

THE E-MAIL arrived from my editor: You, 19 models, NYC to Vegas, four-day party. From Feb. 9 to 12 I'll live the dream, chasing all things Swim, from the cover unveiling by David Letterman on a Times Square billboard to the afterparty that will begin in New York and, after a private plane ride, end up at the hottest club in Las Vegas. I'll chronicle the odyssey—including a pillow fight between Brooklyn Decker and Julie Henderson at 30,000 feet—in a 'round-the-clock blog including interviews, photos and video. Take it all in at si.com/party.

HOURS OF SWIMSUIT VIDEO ON YOUTUBE, TOO

SWIMSUIT ISSUE? More like Swimsuit multimedia bonanza. Once again SI's annual bikini coverage extends far beyond its print pages to include more than four hours of high-quality video footage on its website. On Feb. 10, SI.com rolled out its datababe, uh, database on the YouTube home page, with a special introduction by the SoBe Lizard, no slouch when it comes to performing in big events, such as this month's Super Bowl. The videos will live on the home page for 24 hours and can be found after that at the SI.com channel on YouTube (youtube.com/siswimsuit) and at si.com/swimvideo.

We're not talking grainy, amateur webcam footage. (A promise: no dancing hamsters.) The Chaos Film team of Robb Riley and Julie Deichman was on location for each of the shoots. Acclaimed video director Dan Katz, who has packaged commercials for BMW, Coke and Gap among others, was then enlisted to guarantee the videos popped like never before.

Here's a sampling of the video package that's available at SI.com and YouTube.

- Behind-the-scenes footage from each of seven location shoots, including Irina Shayk's run-in with the carabinieri in Naples. (Imagine Irina splashing around in a fountain at a busy intersection without a permit and you get the idea. . . .)
- Model-produced Web diaries from some of this year's fresh faces. Esti Ginzburg, for example, takes you from her New York City apartment to her first SI shoot, in Naples. In Turkey newbies Lucia Dvorska and Damaris Lewis go on a hot-air balloon adventure.
- A close-up, detailed presentation on the art of bodypainting.

Front to back, if it's in the Swimsuit Issue, you'll find it and even more online.

—Adam Duerson

CLICK TO PLAY SI.com's offerings on YouTube include behind-the-scenes footage from photo shoots, model diaries and even a little model mischief.

THE MODELS ARE VIRTUALLY YOURS

SWIMMING IN outtakes, SI.com offers a variety of digital applications to maximize their availability to viewers. Prime among them is the downloadable Swimsuit calendar at si.com/swimcalendar. It enables you to customize each month of the year with the model of your choosing.

Are you tired of staring at the same image of Tori Praver (left) the entire month? Switch in another shot of her. (Select up to four images per model.) And on your special day, that month's model will sing Happy Birthday to You. Well, maybe not. Next year, perhaps.

Dan Patrick Brings Brooklyn in Da House

THE DECKER DISH ON MODELING, HER MAN AND MEN IN SPEEDOS

DP: Let's just cut to the chase here. It feels like there's some tension in the room.
BD: I don't think there's any tension in the room. I'm very comfortable.
DP: O.K., if this Roddick thing never came about, do you think I'd have a shot?
BD: If we were closer to the same age, you weren't married and didn't have children and I wasn't engaged... maybe there'd be a chance. Those are all kind of big factors when it comes to No on the dating list.

THE MAN Patrick isn't afraid of Leo, but Andy? A whole different story.

DP: Does your dad hurry to the mailbox to get the issue?
BD: That's a funny dynamic. My mom drags him to the bookstore. On SI.com they put the pictures up the night before the launch. So all of the girls are staying up waiting, because we don't see any pictures until the issue comes out. So at 12:30 a.m. we all get up and go look for our pictures. And my parents always do that, and then they go to the bookstore to buy the magazine. My dad's always proud, but he never really wants to look.
DP: If I were up against other models, I'd be catty. You know, "I don't think they're that hot" or "I noticed a little bit of cellulite there...."
BD: Except they all are hot. And they're sweet. If the girls were catty, it'd be easy to say mean things, but you can't. Everyone's really sweet. Sorry, I don't really have anything.
DP: See, I kind of like some backstabbing.
BD: No, nothing.
DP: I thought it would be great if we could re-create that shoot we were on in the Grenadines in November. I am topless right now. So is Brooklyn.
BD: In your dreams.
DP: That shoot was a little weird, though.
BD: I wasn't topless. I had a bathing suit on.
DP: But you had the cone....
BD: Okay, everyone, there's this thing called "the tube" that's made for changing on the beach. So I go to change into a bathing suit, and they pull the tube down and Dan's there. And he was so uncomfortable that he left.
DP: Well, I immediately thought of Roddick.
BD: So you got scared and left? Because he's so intimidating....
DP: No, I said, That's not fair to Andy, for me to look at his fiancée.
BD: You blushed.
DP: I blushed. But Bar Refaeli—I looked at her and kept staring.

TOPICAL ISLAND Decker had much to reveal in a November interview.

BD: You did?
DP: Yeah, because Leonardo DiCaprio does not scare me.
BD: And Andy does?
DP: Andy does a little. He's got a racket. I could probably beat up DiCaprio.
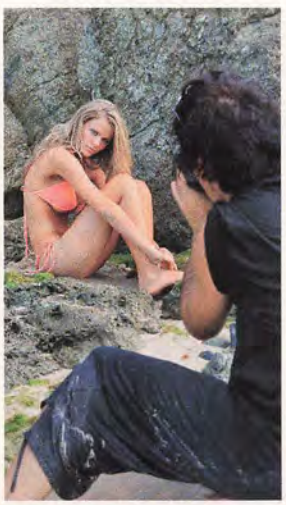
BD: I have no comment. I'm going to get in trouble no matter what I say.



DOUBLE DIP Decker was part of the Grenadines and body paint shoots.

DP: How do you guys avoid paparazzi? I see Tom Brady with Gisele all the time.
BD: Well, they're on a different level of hotness, so they get stalked all the time. You just stay away from certain places. A lot of people invite it into their lives, and it's something I try to stay away from.
DP: Are you and Andy going to have a honeymoon?
BD: Yeah.
DP: Where?
BD: [Laughs]. I'm not giving away any details.
DP: How creepy would this be: You and Andy on the beach and I show up in a Speedo?
BD: How do you know I'm going to a beach?
DP: I just get the feeling. So, Speedo. Guy. Bad?
BD: Bad.
DP: If Roddick had been wearing a Speedo when you first met him... over?
BD: I would definitely pass judgment, yeah.

SWIMSUIT 09

HILARY RHODA

AGE: 21

BORN: Chevy Chase, Md.

ALSO MODELED FOR: Estée Lauder, Ralph Lauren, Victoria's Secret, Valentino, Dolce & Gabbana, Gucci

REACTION TO BEING IN SI: I was ecstatic. I remember being in high school and wanting to be a face in FACES IN THE CROWD for field hockey.

WHAT MAKES ME FEEL SEXY: Shooting the Swimsuit Issue is a good example. It was so natural. I feel sexiest coming home at the end of the day covered in sand with that satisfying exhaustion from being out on the beach and running around.

YOUR DREAM GUY: A sense of humor, someone who makes me laugh and who is grounded.

DO ANY OF US REAL GUYS HAVE A SHOT? Of course! I especially like real guys.

PEOPLE SAY I LOOK LIKE: Priscilla Presley and Brooke Shields.

WORLD'S HOTTEST ATHLETE: Clinton Portis. Go, Redskins!

IS MODELING REALLY THAT HARD? It was harder in the beginning because I was far away from my family, but you get used to it. Now I love traveling all over the world. If I wasn't a model, it would never be possible to visit so many different places, meet so many people and learn so much.

DO ANY OF US REAL GUYS HAVE A SHOT? Of course! What matters for me is that the guy have character and a sense of humor.

IF YOU HAD TO PLAY MATCHMAKER FOR A DAY: I'd pair up Johnny Depp and Scarlett Johansson for sure.

YOUR "NO GOES" WHEN DATING: Being late, not having a sense of humor and not being polite.

WHAT MEAL FROM HOME YOU MISS MOST: Brazilian barbecue!

PEOPLE SAY I LOOK LIKE: Cameron Diaz, even though I don't think so.

AGE: 24

BORN: Shreveport, La.

ALSO MODELED FOR: Dolce & Gabbana, H&M, Gap, V Magazine

REACTION TO BEING IN SI: I was speechless. Being in the Swimsuit Issue has been a dream of mine. I've always followed all the girls in previous issues, and now I'm one of them. It's an honor.

IS MODELING REALLY THAT HARD? Yes! The schedule is extremely demanding. I have to be prepared to fly all over the world at a moment's notice. The hours can be quite long as well, but of course it's worth every minute.

AT WHAT POINT DO YOU KNOW YOU'VE MADE IT? When I see myself on the cover of SPORTS ILLUSTRATED.

WHAT MAKES YOU FEEL SEXY: Being in a tank top and jeans, but I also like to get dressed up.

WHAT MEAL FROM HOME YOU MISS MOST: Gumbo! I'm a Louisiana girl.

PEOPLE SAY I LOOK LIKE: I haven't heard anybody say who I look like. I guess I just look like myself.

IS MODELING REALLY THAT HARD? Physically, no; emotionally, yes. We put our clothes on, we take our clothes off, we shoot everything and go home. You're always alone. You can never plan anything. You have to be happy and smiling on days you might not be happy and not want to smile.

IF YOU HAD TO PLAY MATCHMAKER FOR A DAY: I'd like to think of two people who could get together and make the world a better place. I like Ellen DeGeneres and Oprah. That'd be a nice couple. Or maybe Portia de Rossi and Jennifer Aniston.

YOUR "NO GOES" WHEN DATING: I don't like nail-biting, someone who lacks confidence, and bad shoes—you know, old shoes that haven't been taken care of. My dad used to say looking at a person's shoes tells you a lot about the person.

PEOPLE SAY I LOOK LIKE: I get a lot of Brigitte Bardot, and I think that's because of the gap in my teeth.

DO ANY OF US REAL GUYS HAVE A SHOT? Well, my boyfriend is real; he's sitting right next to me.

IF YOU HAD TO PLAY MATCHMAKER FOR A DAY: Madonna and Michael Jackson would make a great couple.

YOUR "NO GOES" WHEN DATING: The first is smokers. I don't like smokers. The second is selfish people. Can't stand them. And third is someone who doesn't have feelings for family.

YOUR MOST MEMORABLE FIRST: The first time I ever came to New York. It had been my dream ever since I was a little child to see if New York was the same as it is in the movies. When I first landed at JFK and took a yellow taxi, I remember how thankful I was to be in the city and to be able to take the taxi to Manhattan.

IS MODELING REALLY THAT HARD? The job itself isn't, but the preparation is. The hardest part is being on your own in all these amazing cities that you would like to share with someone else.

YOUR DREAM GUY: I have to say Tom Welling from Smallville. In the show he has a great personality and these beautiful eyes and—yeah, wow.

IF YOU HAD TO PLAY MATCHMAKER FOR A DAY: I would pick the funniest guy, Jim Carrey, and the funniest girl, Tina Fey.

YOUR "NO GOES" WHEN DATING: If he burps or farts on the first date. Please, save it for later. I also wouldn't want a guy to say that he wanted to marry me on our first date.

PEOPLE SAY I LOOK LIKE: Avril Lavigne. I don't see it, but thank you.

WORLD'S HOTTEST ATHLETE: I have to choose a hockey player. I'll say José Théodore, who used to be the goalie for the Canadiens.

AGE: 18

BORN: Brooklyn

ALSO MODELED FOR: V Magazine, French Vogue, Benetton, M.A.C., Yves Saint Laurent

REACTION TO BEING IN SI: All I could think about was that a girl from Brooklyn was going to be in SPORTS ILLUSTRATED. I started modeling only three years ago.

IS MODELING REALLY THAT HARD? There are jobs out there that are way harder, but this isn't the easiest job. The reaction that the people on shoots give off is interesting. You never know whether they like the picture or hate it.

DO ANY OF US REAL GUYS HAVE A SHOT? You do see some supermodels with actor and celebrity boyfriends, which is fine. But I prefer a real guy.

PEOPLE SAY I LOOK LIKE: A mix between Beverly Johnson, Tyra Banks, Naomi Campbell and Beverly Peele.

WORLD'S HOTTEST ATHLETE: LeBron James. He just has a swagger. You watch him play basketball, and you're like, Whoa! Yeah, it's LeBron James, hands down.

YOUR DREAM GUY: Someone who makes me laugh, someone I can trust a million percent and someone who will be there for me. That's kind of hard to find today.

DO ANY OF US REAL GUYS HAVE A SHOT? Of course. I've never dated a celebrity.

IF HAD TO PLAY MATCHMAKER FOR A DAY: I would put me and Johnny Depp together.

YOUR "NO GOES" WHEN DATING: When he is cocky, cheap and stupid.

MY MOST MEMORABLE FIRST: My first real shoot. I was 14 and didn't eat all day long and was completely freaking out, but I had the best time. We started really early in the day and ended really late, but it was in Israel. I was just stoked to be modeling.

PEOPLE SAY I LOOK LIKE: Lately I've been getting Rihanna, and I don't know why. I'm blonde and have nothing in common with her, but people keep saying I look like her.

09 BEHIND THE SCENES

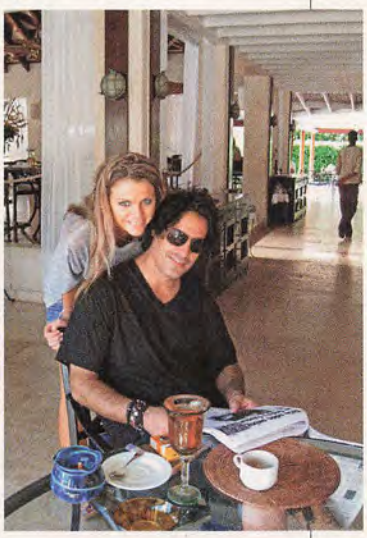
Raffles Resort Canouan Island

ST. VINCENT AND THE GRENADINES, WEST INDIES

ON THIS tiny finger of an island, bypassed by Columbus in the 15th century and pretty much everyone else for the next 500 years, size matters. Raffles—which devours more than a quarter of the five-square-mile island—boasts the Caribbean's largest swimming pool (12,900 square feet) and longest par-3 golf hole (304 yards). One more detail, a resort employee helpfully points out: Canouan's most famous native (and until the construction of Raffles in 2004, perhaps its tallest landmark) is Adonal Foyle, the 6' 10" backup center for the NBA's Orlando Magic.

Still a regular visitor to the island, the Adonal looms large on Canouan, much like the Donald, who casts an outsized shadow over the resort. Though the complex is owned and run by an Italian conglomerate, it was Trump who constructed the Raffles casino (which includes the spectacular restaurant La Varenne) and its postcard-perfect golf course. The 6,900-yard layout starts low and steadily climbs to a breathtaking apex on the back nine. It's not unusual for the high ground to be occupied by as many nongolfers taking in the 360-degree views of Canouan as it is by players. From the tips on the 13th, on clear days you can see as far as Grenada to the south, St. Kitts to the north, eternity to the east and west. "We like to call Raffles a playground for the lucky few," says general manager Gilbert Madhavan.

THAT'S THE TICKET Raffles has a mountain of choices: great hiking, a world-class golf course, amazing vistas. The views at sea level—Bar Refaeli (bottom) and Brooklyn Decker (with photographer Raphael Mazzucco)—weren't bad either.



The course isn't alone in offering stunning vistas. So do Mount Royal, a lush 900-foot peak that can be reached in less than a half hour of vigorous hiking, and the bluffs on Canouan's northeast coast, best reached by mountain bike. For the less aerobically inclined, Raffles offers all the usual amenities of a paradise by the sea: white sand, clear blue ocean and, on the tennis court, A-list dignitaries.

Translated from Carib, the island's predominant tongue along with English, Canouan means Land of the Turtle. Like the ubiquitous tartarucha, life on the island does indeed move slowly. (Until the 1990s, Canouan didn't even have electricity.) But that's the whole point, isn't it? —Christian Stone

VIEWS TO DIE FOR From the sixth-floor terrace one can gaze past classical statuary at the Bay of Naples, Vesuvius and Capri, sights as striking as the occasional model (in this case, Esti) who might drop into the Parker's lobby.

Grand Hotel Parker's

NAPLES AND POMPEII, ITALY

GEORGE PARKER BIDDER was asleep one morning in 1889 in his customary suite at the Hotel Tramontano Beaurivage when a bailiff and Albert Brazil, hotelier and rotten card player, knocked to announce that the hillside hotel was being seized to pay off gambling debts. The guest, a marine biologist from a wealthy English family, replied, "Put the hotel on my bill."

Thus was born Parker's—a name that, like the hotel, has survived an earthquake, a war and visits by Clark Gable, Boris Yeltsin and Deep Purple. In 1943 the German army made the hotel its local headquarters and put land mines in the basement. Allied troops later defused the mines after being tipped off by a) a porter, who spoke no English but saluted and stamped on the floor in warning; or b) the Marquis don Achille di Lorenzo, who was married to a relative of Churchill's and had been held captive in the hotel.

In either case the story is as splendid as the view from the sixth-floor terrace of Grand Hotel Parker's. Mount Vesuvius looms through a haze on the left. The honking chaos of a port city percolates below, but breakfast at Parker's, amid potted lemon trees, is the most soothing start to a day imaginable, unless, of course, you opt for the wine treatment in the hotel spa. Although I'm vague on the process, my wife emerged from a two-hour session smiling and smelling faintly like a 2003 Barolo.

Tourists use this city as a jumping-off point for the excavations at Pompeii, the world's liveliest dead town, or Sorrento's stunning cliffs. This does Naples a disservice. The historic center, with its warren of single-file streets, boasts wonders that include the most exquisite statue I've seen (take that, David!): the Veiled Christ (1753) of Giuseppe Sammartino, in the private Sansevero Chapel on Via de Sanctis.

There is another worthy shrine nearby: Capello Miracoloso di Diego Armando Maradona, which features a holy relic, a lock of the former SSC Napoli star's hair. The shrine hangs on the wall of a coffee bar, Nilo, which requests you buy a coffee if you take a picture. My wife did. Unlike George Parker Bidder, she couldn't put it on her tab.

Museum Hotel

CAPPADOCIA, TURKEY

I COULD have seen most of Cappadocia in a day, as many tourists do, from the window of a van. But to truly see Cappadocia, ground level wouldn't do. Cappadocia is best viewed from high above, and from deep within.

To get above, I rose before sunrise and climbed into the basket of a hot-air balloon. Eight hundred feet up, a spectacular landscape unfurled beneath me. Twenty million years ago volcanic eruptions blanketed this 20,000-square-mile region of central Turkey with ash that hardened into porous rock known as tuff. The eruptions then laid down chunks of basalt, a harder rock, over the ash. Millions of years of wind beating the tuff and of water cutting away the land below have carved a bewitching tableau of what Cappadocians call "fairy chimneys": tuff spikes forming like God's traffic cones, as high as buildings, to points that often miraculously balance a rectangular basalt capstone the size of a Buick. From above, it might as well be some other planet, with some other law of gravity.

The afternoon was time to venture inside Cappadocia, by exploring one of the dozens of underground cities cut into the tuff between the second and ninth centuries by persecuted Christians. "Everything you have in New York City," joked Ibrahim, my guide, "we have in here." Indeed, there are kitchens, bedrooms, churches and even wineries.

At the end of the day I headed back to the aptly named Museum Hotel, whose halls are adorned by antique artifacts, fine Turkish rugs and ebru paintings, for which the artist dabbed color on the surface of water and then laid paper down on top of it. The 30 rooms were carved into the tuff of the surrounding hillside, and each has a distinct identity. Mine had an illuminated marble fountain filled with goldfish.

The next morning I awoke to the sun beaming through the room's eight windows and saw pigeons angling up to the clouds, doing playful flips in the air. Funny, I'd never seen them do that in New York.

—David Epstein

TUFF LIFE Anne V (bottom, left) and Julie Henderson rocked the luxury den of friendly owner Ömer Tosun, who builds plenty of Turkish delights into any stay, including a sparkling pool and the huge, customized quarters, one of which came with its own marble fountain.

Now there is the NEW INFIELD CLUB.

The Kentucky Derby Infield with its traditional party pits and mud fights holds a certain kind of charm for Derby-goers. But if you're ready to graduate from the crazy antics of the Infield crowd to join the "in" crowd, check out the new Infield Club at the 2009 Kentucky Derby and Kentucky Oaks. The Infield Club offers the best of both worlds. You'll be surrounded by all of the energy and excitement of the Infield, but in a more comfortable, sports-bar atmosphere. The Infield Club will be a private section in the middle of the Infield, featuring a jumbotron television, upgraded restrooms, private betting windows, disc jockeys spinning hot tunes, first-come, first-served shaded seating areas, and a giant horseshoe-shaped bar. The NEW INFIELD CLUB at the 2009 Kentucky Derby and Kentucky Oaks: Good time guaranteed. Swimsuit models optional.

"The idea was to create a kilim rug to represent the Turkey shoot. in L.A. I found a beautiful turn-of-the century kilim, whose pattern influenced this design. I wanted it to look like old, worn-out cutoff jeans, and for people to really see the needlepoint. I also hiked up the bottom to bring out her beautiful curvature."

"I painted Julie in tile designed to represent the ancient Mayan version of the alphabet. Each tile symbolizes a word or a sound. As for the shape of the suit, I saw a picture of Julie in last year's issue in which she's wearing a cutoff T-shirt. She has beautifully curved natural breasts, which I wanted to show off here."

Spice Island Beach Resort

ST. GEORGE'S, GRENADA

THE MAN in the dusty T-shirt and battered jeans is trying to convince me that $15 dollars is a fair price for a necklace made of nutmeg and string. I don't care. I want it. He hands me a bag of cocoa balls and tells me that when mixed with milk they will make the strongest chocolate elixir I have ever tasted. Ten dollars? Done. Perhaps it's the air, sweetly scented by a cornucopia of indigenous fruits, or it's the sight of a majestic waterfall in the rain forest out the shop's window. Regardless, I'm an easy mark: Whatever he's selling, I'm buying. I hastily pack my new possessions and hurry out the door. I've got a resort to get back to.

Situated on beaches whiter than an alpine mountaintop, a coconut's throw from an ocean that feels as if its temperature were set by climate control, the Spice Island Beach Resort would be worth the trip even if it offered the amenities of a Motel 6 and the cuisine of a chain restaurant. It does not.

Spice Island is all about options. The weary traveler just looking to decompress can take a stroll across the sprawling, 348,000-square-foot campus to Janissa's Spa before enjoying cocktails at the oceanside bar. Or take a leisurely evening tour of an island sprinkled with quaint shops and boutiques, such as the one that plied me with cocoa balls—an island so clean that residents pull their cars to the side of the road to refill water bottles from natural springs. For the more energetic vacationer there's tennis, scuba diving or a trip through the spice aisle at an outdoor market in St. George's, the capital.

Me? I'm more of the weary-traveler persuasion. After one day of sightseeing I became a bit of a homebody. But what a home. My room was an airy 1,440-square-foot palace that would've made even a duchess blush. My mornings were spent jogging along the winding beaches and my afternoons relaxing in a hammock outside my room or on a plush lounge chair by the pool. Four days passed like four hours, and when it was time to go, just one thought flashed through my mind: This is the perfect elixir.

—Chris Mannix

NATURAL BEAUTY The scenery at the resort couldn't have been lovelier—until, of course, it was spiced up by a couple of models: Julie Henderson (below), who under her robe wore nothing but paint, and Jessica White (bottom).

I have poor leg circulation.

And I have a good reason to try to reduce the risk of heart attack or stroke that comes with it.

Plavix can help

Peripheral Artery Disease (P.A.D.) is often described as poor leg circulation, which puts you at double the risk of heart attack or stroke. That's because, if you have poor blood circulation in your legs, you may also have it in your heart and brain. You may feel nothing, but the most common symptom of P.A.D. is pain or heaviness in the legs.

Take the next step. So if you're diagnosed with P.A.D., ask your doctor about a treatment clinically proven to help reduce your risk of heart attack and stroke associated with P.A.D. PLAVIX helps keep blood platelets from sticking together and forming dangerous clots, the cause of most heart attacks and strokes. Ask your doctor about PLAVIX.

To learn more, talk to your doctor today or visit www.plavix.com/PAD or call 1-888-266-9302.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION: If you have a stomach ulcer or other condition that causes bleeding, you should not use PLAVIX. When taking PLAVIX alone or with some other medicines including aspirin, the risk of bleeding may increase so tell your doctor before planning surgery. And, always talk to your doctor before taking aspirin or other medicines with PLAVIX, especially if you've had a stroke. If you develop fever, unexplained weakness or confusion, tell your doctor promptly as these may be signs of a rare but potentially life-threatening condition called TTP, which has been reported rarely, sometimes in less than 2 weeks after starting therapy. Other rare but serious side effects may occur.

Please see important product information on following page.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch, or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

Plavix®
(clopidogrel bisulfate) 75mg tablets

WHO IS PLAVIX FOR?
PLAVIX is a prescription-only medicine that helps keep blood platelets from sticking together and forming clots.

PLAVIX is for patients who have:
- had a recent heart attack.
- had a recent stroke.
- poor circulation in their legs (Peripheral Artery Disease).

PLAVIX in combination with aspirin is for patients hospitalized with:
- heart-related chest pain (unstable angina).
- heart attack.

Doctors may refer to these conditions as ACS (Acute Coronary Syndrome).

Clots can become dangerous when they form inside your arteries. These clots form when blood platelets stick together, forming a blockage within your arteries, restricting blood flow to your heart or brain, causing a heart attack or stroke.

WHO SHOULD NOT TAKE PLAVIX?
You should NOT take PLAVIX if you:
- are allergic to clopidogrel (the active ingredient in PLAVIX).
- have a stomach ulcer
- have another condition that causes bleeding.
- are pregnant or may become pregnant.
- are breast feeding.

WHAT SHOULD I TELL MY DOCTOR BEFORE TAKING PLAVIX?
Before taking PLAVIX, tell your doctor if you're pregnant or are breast feeding or have any of the following:
- gastrointestinal ulcer
- stomach ulcer(s)
- liver problems
- kidney problems
- a history of bleeding conditions

WHAT IMPORTANT INFORMATION SHOULD I KNOW ABOUT PLAVIX?
TTP: A very serious blood condition called TTP (Thrombotic Thrombocytopenic Purpura) has been rarely reported in people taking PLAVIX. TTP is a potentially life-threatening condition that involves low blood platelet and red blood cell levels, and requires urgent referral to a specialist for prompt treatment once a diagnosis is suspected. Warning signs of TTP may include fever, unexplained confusion or weakness (due to a low blood count, what doctors call anemia). To make an accurate diagnosis, your doctor will need to order blood tests. TTP has been reported rarely, sometimes in less than 2 weeks after starting therapy.

Gastrointestinal Bleeding: There is a potential risk of gastrointestinal (stomach and intestine) bleeding when taking PLAVIX. PLAVIX should be used with caution in patients who have lesions that may bleed (such as ulcers), along with patients who take drugs that cause such lesions.

Bleeding: You may bleed more easily and it may take you longer than usual to stop bleeding when you take PLAVIX alone or in combination with aspirin. Report any unusual bleeding to your doctor.

Geriatrics: When taking aspirin with PLAVIX the risk of serious bleeding increases with age in patients 65 and over.

Stroke Patients: If you have had a recent TIA (also known as a mini-stroke) or stroke taking aspirin with PLAVIX has not been shown to be more effective than taking PLAVIX alone, but taking aspirin with PLAVIX has been shown to increase the risk of bleeding compared to taking PLAVIX alone.

Surgery: Inform doctors and dentists well in advance of any surgery that you are taking PLAVIX so they can help you decide whether or not to discontinue your PLAVIX treatment prior to surgery.

WHAT SHOULD I KNOW ABOUT TAKING OTHER MEDICINES WITH PLAVIX?
You should only take aspirin with PLAVIX when directed to do so by your doctor. Certain other medicines should not be taken with PLAVIX. Be sure to tell your doctor about all of your current medications, especially if you are taking the following:
- aspirin
- nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs)
- warfarin
- heparin

Be sure to tell your doctor if you are taking PLAVIX before starting any new medication.

WHAT ARE THE COMMON SIDE EFFECTS OF PLAVIX?
The most common side effects of PLAVIX include gastrointestinal events (bleeding, abdominal pain, indigestion, diarrhea, and nausea) and rash. This is not a complete list of side effects associated with PLAVIX. Ask your doctor or pharmacist for a complete list.

HOW SHOULD I TAKE PLAVIX?
Only take PLAVIX exactly as prescribed by your doctor. Do not change your dose or stop taking PLAVIX without talking to your doctor first.

PLAVIX should be taken around the same time every day, and it can be taken with or without food. If you miss a day, do not double up on your medication. Just continue your usual dose. If you have any questions about taking your medications, please consult your doctor.

OVERDOSAGE
As with any prescription medicine, it is possible to overdose on PLAVIX. If you think you may have overdosed, immediately call your doctor or Poison Control Center, or go to the nearest emergency room.

FOR MORE INFORMATION
For more information on PLAVIX, call 1-800-633-1610 or visit www.PLAVIX.com. Neither of these resources, nor the information contained here, can take the place of talking to your doctor. Only your doctor knows the specifics of your condition and how PLAVIX fits into your overall therapy. It is therefore important to maintain an ongoing dialogue with your doctor concerning your condition and your treatment.

NICE CURVES The scene at the mammoth pool shapes up as a nice alternative—even when Cintia (below, left) and Jessica aren't around—to the foam parties and wet T-shirt contests of the island's most tourist-mad spots.

Gran Meliá Palacio de Isora

TENERIFE, CANARY ISLANDS

THE POOL at the Gran Meliá Palacio de Isora is nearly three football fields long. That might sound like an exhausting distance, but this isn't really a place to get your laps in. Because of the way the pool is set up, in various undulating sections, you approach it as you would an afternoon amble from one neighborhood to another. You float past the scene at the poolside bar, drop by a water-aerobics class, stop and relax awhile on a submerged shelf that is contoured like a lounge chair, so you can lean back with only your face out of the water. Then, when the sun gets to be too much, you paddle to the shade of an in-water cabana, where you might strike up a conversation with a comely European vacationer and idly wonder whether your family would really miss you if you never came home.

The pool is built for lazy afternoons at this Vegas-style resort situated a safe distance from the madness that is the southern coast of Tenerife, the largest of the seven Canary Islands. Tenerife has long been known as a place where German and British tourists go for foam parties and wet T-shirt contests, but the Gran Meliá is an upscale respite from all that. The resort is located in the town of Alcalá, which attracts vacationers mostly from the Spanish mainland.

If you want to venture farther out on the island, and you're just not in a foam-party state of mind, one curiosity to visit is the Pirámides de Güímar. This collection of black-rock terraces is thought to date to the 19th century, although explorer-author Thor Heyerdahl believed the terraces may have ties to the island's ancient pre-Hispanic civilizations. Frankly, it's hard to know what to make of the Pirámides, beyond that they look sort of cool. For instance, the brochure at the visitors' center says that "the existence of the Güímar stepped pyramids began to be recognized as a consequence of the publication, in the early nineties, of an article in a Tenerife daily newspaper." Um . . . what? No matter. Tenerife is a playground. No one visits it to take things all that seriously. —Bill Syken

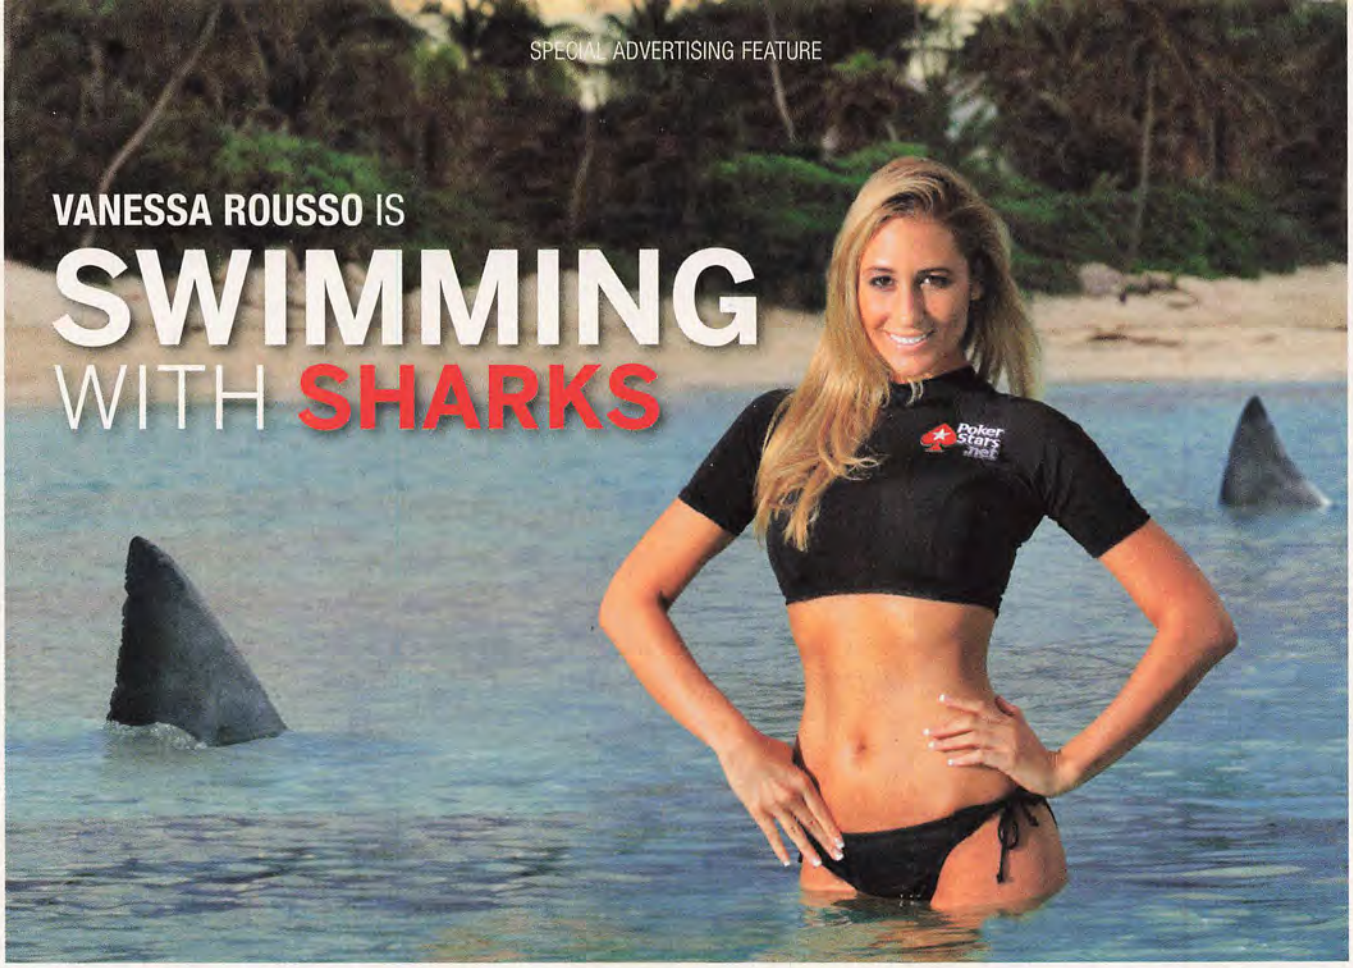
VANESSA ROUSSO IS SWIMMING WITH SHARKS



PROFESSIONAL POKER HAS LONG BEEN a sport dominated by men. So when Vanessa Rousso came along to swim with the sharks, her looks may have thrown the guys off. But it's her intelligence at the table that makes her so dangerous. A 25-year-old Miami native, Rousso received a full scholarship to Duke University and graduated in 2½ years. While in school she focused on game theory, a discipline that involves mathematically analyzing people's behavior in strategic situations (like a poker table) and relating it to everyday life. Since turning pro only a few years ago, Rousso, a member of Team PokerStars Pro, has amassed more than $2 million in earnings.

On how her education prepared her for a poker career ...

I learned how to break down complex situations, very much like the situations you face at a poker table. For instance, in analyzing an opponent's tendency to bluff in a particular situation, I'll create a variable that affects my ultimate decision should I find myself in a hand against that player. Basically, my education trained me to make calculated decisions under intense pressure, which is one way to describe a poker tournament.

On being a female in a male-dominated sport ...

I probably don't take advantage of that as much as I ought to. People have told me if I dress a different way it'd be to my advantage, and I can't say that I haven't considered it. But I think the biggest advantage for me is that when I sit down at the poker table, everyone sees a young, 25-year-old woman with blonde hair. They don't think I'm capable of much, and they have low expectations with regard to my ability. I can fly under the radar for quite a while until people realize I know what I'm doing.

On first impressions—in poker and in dating ...

With dating, you can tell in the first five minutes whether you're interested in somebody through the skills you've honed over the course of your life. Likewise, the first five minutes at the poker table are the most important to me. I spend that time paying attention to the information my opponents are giving away, while minimizing the amount of information I'm giving about myself. Right away, I look at clothing, age, gender, how someone stacks their chips and involuntary body movements. I'll start a conversation to figure out what they do for a living and how they got their money. Give me five minutes with someone, and I can tell you what type of player, and person, he or she is.

On commanding respect as a woman at the table ...

Early on I struggled with that. I had two different identities—one at the poker table, and then who I am in my normal "girly girl" mode. I wanted to create a persona at the table that would allow for the most success. So I found that being less ostentatious and just trying to blend in was the best strategy. Away from the table, I've gotten some really touching emails from women telling me that they look up to what I do, and I've inspired them to take the game more seriously. I'm just having fun, and proud to be a part of this sport.—with Lou Dubois

IN CHIPS

Tournament poker is not about buying more chips, it's about earning them. Hand after hand. Grind after grind. Turning that starting stack into an army.

At PokerStars, we run over a hundred thousand tournaments every single day. That's an awful lot of chips in play. So learn to use them wisely.

Maroma Resort and Spa

RIVIERA MAYA, MEXICO

MY WIFE cast an anxious glance at the work crew scurrying about to hoist a half-dozen heavy platform beds from a grassy area off the beach—where we were comfortably reclining—to the shoreline. Hefting each bed required four men, who went about their business in relentless worker-bee fashion.

"Do you think they'll lift us right up with the bed?" Donna wondered.

"Let me ask," I said. And I did.

"Sure, if you want to, we will do it," said one of the workers in broken English.

We declined. But ask and it shall be done at Maroma, one of the jewels in the Orient-Express hotel chain. At this luxury resort about 30 miles south of Cancún, some 250 employees service 65 rooms, which explains why your morning coffee arrives at precisely the requested time and why American turistas bent on watching the World Series can get chilled margaritas and piping-hot chiles rellenos delivered to the common room known as the Palapa.

The resort was built over two decades by Mayan masons, who finished their work on Valentine's Day of 1995, 19 years after Mexico City architect José Luis Moreno discovered the unspoiled piece of land on a flyover. Moreno built two- and three-story hacienda-style buildings, which are dotted along the 25-acre beachfront. Stone walkways wind through the entire 500-acre property; at night they are illuminated by hundreds of candles, which makes your stroll to dinner seem like a romantic pilgrimage.

Don't expect noise and nightlife at Maroma—two guacamayas rojas (scarlet macaws) named Chris and Laura supply much of the former, and the latter basically ceases after a candlelight dinner at El Sol. But do expect an uplifting experience—literally so, if that's your wish.

MAYA, OH MAYA For Ariel Meredith (bottom) the resort was a place to brush up against a symbol of Mexico's rich history, while for Jessica Hart (below) its lush grounds between the ocean and the jungle were beautiful to behold through a covered camera.

CAP CANA, DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

I'D ALWAYS been skeptical of the double take. It struck me as a contrived gesture, practiced nowhere outside of cartoons and second-rate sitcoms. (Flo walks through the back of the diner and—stop! recoil! look again!—Mel is trying to smooch Vera.) Now I'm no longer skeptical. The first weekend in December, I was maneuvering a golf cart on the grounds of Cap Cana, a resort on the eastern tip of the Dominican Republic. I rounded a corner and could have sworn I was looking at Alex Rodriguez, not 10 yards away, teeing off on the fourth hole. What the. . . ? I jerked back and looked a second time. Yup. A-Rod, all right.

Then again, it was somehow fitting. Cap Cana is the kind of place where the lines between reality and surreality get a bit blurry. A gorgeous fantasyland that luxuriates along the Caribbean, Cap Cana is almost creepily perfect. The beach is fine nonstick powder fringed by natural bluffs and by surf tinted that exquisite Caribbean shade of blue-green. There's world-class fishing just offshore.

Like the naturally beautiful supermodel who still goes to great measures to gussy herself up, Cap Cana has plenty of man-made enhancements, too, not least of which is the Jack Nicklaus–designed Punta Espada golf course. When completed, the Cap Cana Marina will be the largest in the Caribbean. The usual resort amenities—spa, tennis, fine seafood-based dining, luxe accommodations—veer close to the point of excess. Who ever thought to put a hot tub in the middle of a swimming pool?

Back to A-Rod. What was he doing there? He had come to Cap Cana for a charity golf tournament held by David Ortiz, the Red Sox star, a Dominican native. Others in the field included Pedro Martinez, Vladimir Guerrero, Ryan Howard and Mariano Rivera. Later that afternoon I saw Rodriguez again in the hotel lobby. As he walked through, another guest spotted him—another double take—and blurted out, "A-Rod? What are you doing here?" He smiled, opened his palms and gestured to the surroundings, as if to say, Why wouldn't I be here? —L. Jon Wertheim

R&R, D.R.-STYLE Tennis players Daniela Hantuchova (bottom left, with photographer Walter looss Jr.) and Maria Kirilenko (in green bikini, with makeup artist Pia Guccione and mother, Olga) were just a few of the big-name athletes to find sanctuary at the intimate resort.

"I'm taking an antidepressant, but I think I might need more help."
Approximately 2 out of 3 people being treated for depression still have depression symptoms. If an antidepressant alone isn't enough, talk to your doctor. Your options may include adding ABILIFY to the antidepressant you're already taking.
ABILIFY is the only medicine FDA-approved to treat depression in adults when added to an antidepressant (such as Lexapro,® Zoloft,® Prozac,® Effexor XR® or Paxil CR®).*

IMPORTANT SAFETY INFORMATION:

Elderly patients with dementia-related psychosis (eg, an inability to perform daily activities due to increased memory loss) taking ABILIFY have an increased risk of death or stroke. ABILIFY is not approved for treating these patients.

Antidepressants can increase suicidal thoughts and behaviors in children, teens, and young adults. Serious mental illnesses are themselves associated with an increase in the risk of suicide. When taking ABILIFY call your doctor right away if you have new or worsening depression symptoms, unusual changes in behavior, or thoughts of suicide. Patients and their caregivers should be especially observant within the first few months of treatment or after a change in dose. Approved only for adults 18 and over with depression.

- Alert your doctor if you develop very high fever, rigid muscles, shaking, confusion, sweating, or increased heart rate and blood pressure, as these may be signs of a rare but potentially fatal condition called neuroleptic malignant syndrome (NMS)
- If you develop abnormal or uncontrollable facial movements, notify your doctor, as these may be signs of tardive dyskinesia (TD), which could become permanent
- If you have diabetes or have risk factors or symptoms of diabetes, your blood sugar should be monitored. High blood sugar has been reported with ABILIFY and medicines like it. In some cases, extreme high blood sugar can lead to coma or death
- Other risks may include lightheadedness upon standing, seizures, trouble swallowing, or impairment in judgment or motor skills. Until you know how ABILIFY affects you, you should not drive or operate machinery

The common side effects in adults in clinical trials (≥10%) include nausea, vomiting, constipation, headache, dizziness, an inner sense of restlessness or need to move (akathisia), anxiety, and insomnia. Tell your doctor about all the medicines you're taking, since there are some risks for drug interactions. You should avoid alcohol while taking ABILIFY.

IF AN ANTIDEPRESSANT ALONE ISN'T ENOUGH.

ABILIFY
(aripiprazole)
2, 5, 10, 15, 20, 30 mg Tablets

IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT ABILIFY

This summary of the Package Insert contains risk and safety information for patients about ABILIFY. This summary does not include all information about ABILIFY and does not take the place of discussions with your healthcare professional about your treatment. Please read this important information before you start taking ABILIFY and discuss any questions about ABILIFY with your healthcare professional.

Name

ABILIFY® (a-BIL-ĭ-fi) (aripiprazole) (air-ĭ-PIP-ra-zall)

What is ABILIFY?

ABILIFY (aripiprazole) is a prescription medicine used as an add-on treatment to antidepressants for Major Depressive Disorder in adults.

What is depression?

Depression is a common but serious medical condition. Symptoms may include sadness, loss of interest in activities you once enjoyed, loss of energy, difficulty concentrating or making decisions, feelings of worthlessness or excessive guilt, insomnia or excessive sleep, a change in appetite causing weight loss or gain, or thoughts of death or suicide. These could be depression symptoms if they interfere with daily life at home, at work, or with friends and last most of the day, nearly every day for at least 2 weeks.

What is the most important information that I should know about antidepressant medicines, depression, and other serious mental illnesses?

- Antidepressant medicines may increase suicidal thoughts or actions in some children, teenagers, and young adults
- Depression and serious mental illnesses are the most important causes of suicidal thoughts and actions

For more information, see the Prescribing Information and the Medication Guide called Antidepressant Medicines, Depression and Other Serious Mental Illnesses, and Suicidal Thoughts or Actions.

Who should NOT take ABILIFY?

People who are allergic to ABILIFY or to any substance that is in it. Allergic reactions have ranged from rash, hives and itching to difficulty breathing and swelling of the face, lips, or tongue. Please talk with your healthcare professional.

What is the most important information that I should know about ABILIFY?

Elderly patients, diagnosed with psychosis as a result of dementia (for example, an inability to perform daily activities as a result of increased memory loss), and who are treated with antipsychotic medicines including ABILIFY, are at an increased risk of death when compared to patients who are treated with a placebo (sugar pill). ABILIFY is not approved for the treatment of patients with dementia-related psychosis.

Antidepressants may increase suicidal thoughts or behaviors in some children, teenagers, and young adults, especially within the first few months of treatment or when the dose is changed. Depression and other serious mental illnesses are themselves associated with an increase in the risk of suicide. Patients on antidepressants and their families or caregivers should watch for new or worsening depression symptoms, unusual changes in behavior, or thoughts of suicide. Such symptoms should be reported to the patient's healthcare professional right away, especially if they are severe or occur suddenly. ABILIFY is not approved for use in pediatric patients with depression.

Serious side effects can occur with any antipsychotic medicine, including ABILIFY. Tell your healthcare professional right away if you have any conditions or side effects, including the following:

Stroke or ministroke in elderly patients with dementia: An increased risk of stroke and ministroke has been reported in clinical studies of elderly patients with dementia (for example, increased memory loss and inability to perform daily activities). ABILIFY is not approved for treating patients with dementia.

Neuroleptic malignant syndrome (NMS): Very high fever, rigid muscles, shaking, confusion, sweating, or increased heart rate and blood pressure may be signs of NMS, a rare but serious side effect that could be fatal.

Tardive dyskinesia (TD): Abnormal or uncontrollable movements of face, tongue, or other parts of body may be signs of a serious condition known as TD, which may be permanent.

High blood sugar and diabetes: Patients with diabetes and those having risk factors for diabetes (for example, obesity, family history of diabetes), as well as those with symptoms such as unexpected increases in thirst, urination, or hunger should have their blood sugar levels checked before and during treatment. Increases in blood sugar levels (hyperglycemia), in some cases serious and associated with coma or death, have been reported in patients taking ABILIFY, and medicines like it.

Orthostatic hypotension: Lightheadedness or faintness caused by a sudden change in heart rate and blood pressure when rising too quickly from a sitting or lying position (orthostatic hypotension) has been reported with ABILIFY.

Suicidal thoughts: If you have suicidal thoughts, you should tell your healthcare professional right away.

Dysphagia: Medicines like ABILIFY (aripiprazole) have been associated with swallowing problems (dysphagia). If you had or have swallowing problems, you should tell your healthcare professional

What should I talk to my healthcare provider about?

Patients and their families or caregivers should watch for new or worsening depression symptoms, unusual changes in behavior and thoughts of suicide, as well as for anxiety, agitation, panic attacks, difficulty sleeping, irritability, hostility, aggressiveness, impulsivity, restlessness, or extreme hyperactivity. Call your healthcare provider right away if you have thoughts of suicide or if any of these symptoms are severe or occur suddenly. Be especially observant within the first few months of antidepressant treatment or whenever there is a change in dose.

Tell your healthcare provider about any medical conditions you may have and all medicines that you are taking or plan to take, including prescription and nonprescription (over-the-counter) medicines.

Be sure to tell your healthcare provider:

- If you have suicidal thoughts
- If you or anyone in your family have or had seizures
- If you or anyone in your family have or had high blood sugar or diabetes
- If you are pregnant, plan to become pregnant, or are breast-feeding

What should I avoid when taking ABILIFY?

- Avoid overheating and dehydration
- Avoid driving or operating hazardous machinery until you know how ABILIFY affects you
- Avoid drinking alcohol
- Avoid breast-feeding an infant

What are the possible side effects of ABILIFY?

Common side effects in adults include: nausea, vomiting, constipation, headache, dizziness, an inner sense of restlessness or need to move (akathisia), anxiety and insomnia.

It is important to contact your healthcare professional if you experience prolonged, abnormal muscle spasm or contraction which may be signs of a condition called dystonia.

What percentage of people stopped taking ABILIFY due to side effects?

In clinical trials, the percentage of adults who discontinued taking ABILIFY due to side effects was ABILIFY (6%) and for patients treated with sugar pill (2%).

Can I safely take ABILIFY while I'm taking other medications?

ABILIFY can be taken with most drugs; however, taking ABILIFY with some medicines may require your healthcare professional to adjust the dosage of ABILIFY.

Some medicines* include:

- ketoconazole (NIZORAL®)
- quinidine (QUINIDEX®)
- fluoxetine (PROZAC®)
- paroxetine (PAXIL®)
- carbamazepine (TEGRETOL®)

It is important to tell your healthcare professional about all the medicines you're taking, just to be sure.

General advice about ABILIFY:

- ABILIFY is usually taken once a day, with or without food
- ABILIFY should be kept out of the reach of children and pets
- Store ABILIFY Tablets and the Oral Solution at room temperature
- For patients who must limit their sugar intake, be aware that ABILIFY Oral Solution contains sugar
- For patients who cannot metabolize phenylalanine (those with phenylketonuria or PKU), ABILIFY DISCMELT® contains phenylalanine
- If you have additional questions, talk to your healthcare professional
